JOHNNY MORGAN. IELTS. TRANSCRIPT

Hi everyone, I am Johnny Morgan.

After 10 years marking IELTS exams and teaching IELTS students, I want to tell you the biggest problem that I see. Far too many students and far too many lazy, lazy teachers, focus exclusively on pronunciation, vocabulary, expressions, and idiomatic expressions, but they ignore the most important thing.
The most important thing is grammar.

Here is a list of grammar that you should know and should use in your IELTS writing and speaking exams:

1. The present perfect verb tense
2. Connecting clauses
3. The future infinitive
4. Adverbs of quantity
5. Adjectives of quantity
6. Preferences
7. Zero conditional
8. First conditional
9. The present continuous for future plans
10. The past continuous
11. Modal verbs
12. The infinitive of purpose

If you use this grammar, you are so much more likely to pass your IELTS exam.

Good luck!
